Avineon Appoints John Tarr as Geospatial Business Development Executive

Alexandria, Va. – April 27, 2010 – Avineon, Inc., a successful provider of IT, geospatial, engineering, and program management solutions, today announced the appointment of John Tarr as a geospatial business development executive for the company's commercial division. Tarr will be responsible for identifying and securing new geospatial business opportunities in the telecommunications, utilities, and state and local government markets.

Gary Wilkison, Avineon's Senior Vice President of Commercial Systems, said, "John's extensive success with large contracts within the energy, utilities, and communications markets will greatly benefit our geospatial business development team. His comprehensive understanding of our target industries will allow him to better address our customers' needs and allow Avineon to continue providing unparalleled service to our clients."

Tarr brings more than 13 years of experience in business development and operations management to Avineon. His career has been concentrated in the telecommunications and utility markets, working on some of the largest geospatial programs in the world. He has successfully closed more than $100 million worth of contracts for projects involving business process outsourcing, data clean up, data migration, field data collection, and data conversion. Tarr will be based in Avineon's Clearwater, Fla., office.

"I am excited about joining one of the premier providers of geospatial services in the industry," said Tarr. "This opportunity will allow me to offer our customers a full range of geospatial offerings backed by a strong dual-shore operations team. I look forward to adding to Avineon's strong value proposition and helping the company expand its footprint in the geospatial market."

Tarr received a master's of business administration from the University of North Carolina at Charlotte and a master's of earth and environmental resources management from the University of South Carolina. He also holds a bachelor of science in marine science from the University of South Carolina.
